

TUESDAY, January 26, 2010

COOKING WITH IBRAHIM AT BROOKVIEW

Ibrahim Pariak, owner of the Cafe Gullistan in Harbert, teaches a sold-out cooking class Monday night at the Brookview School in Benton Township. Next to Pariak is his daughter, Livia Gazzolo, a student at Brookview. This class on Middle Eastern-influenced appetizers is the first of four consecutive Monday night classes. Julee Laurent of Think Tank Media said the classes sold out so quickly that another round of classes will be held. People interested in taking the classes can reach her at thinktankmedia1@gmail.com. The cost is $50 per class or $175 for all four and is 80-percent tax deductible, with proceeds going to support the school.

Photos by John Madill / H-P staff

Pariak chops tomatoes.

Livia chops up parsley during the class Monday night.